

vnova::utility::BaseDecoder
AVC::ParseNalUnit

vnova::utility::BaseDecoder
HEVC::ParseNalUnit

vnova::utility::BaseDecoder
VVC::ParseNalUnit

vnova::utility::BaseDecoder
::Unencapsulate

```
graph LR; A["vnova::utility::BaseDecoderAVC::ParseNalUnit"] --> D["vnova::utility::BaseDecoder::Unencapsulate"]; B["vnova::utility::BaseDecoderHEVC::ParseNalUnit"] --> D; C["vnova::utility::BaseDecoderVVC::ParseNalUnit"] --> D;
```

The diagram illustrates a relationship between three source functions and a common target function. On the left, there are three white rectangular boxes with black borders, each containing a namespace-qualified function name. Blue arrows point from each of these boxes to a single gray rectangular box on the right, which also contains a namespace-qualified function name. The arrows originate from the right side of each source box and point towards the left side of the target box.